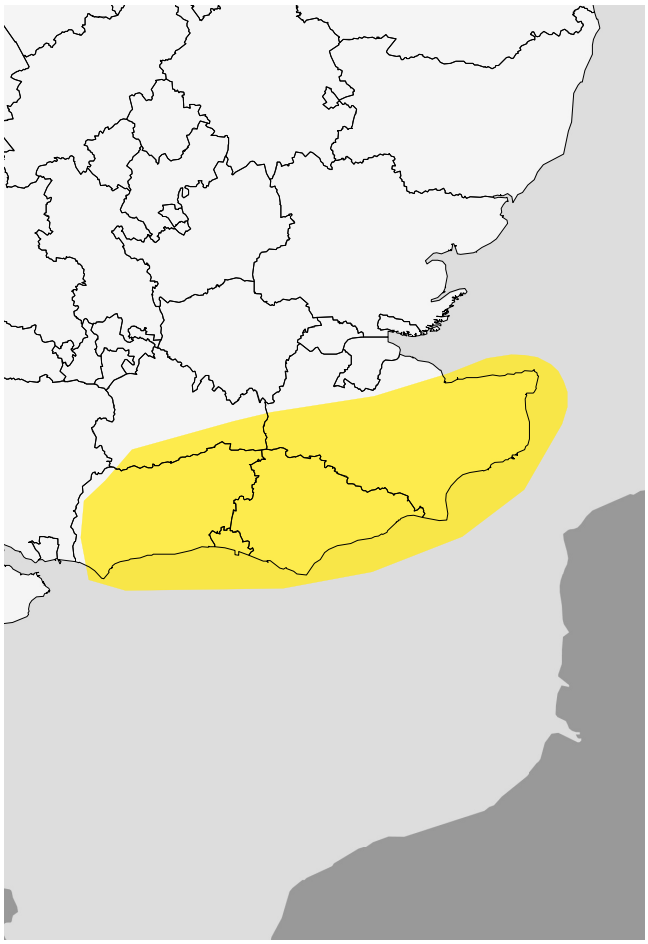
Yellow warning
Thunderstorm

Between
16:30 Thu 8 Sep 2022 and
02:00 Fri 9 Sep 2022



Frequent heavy showers and thunderstorms likely to bring disruption to a few areas.

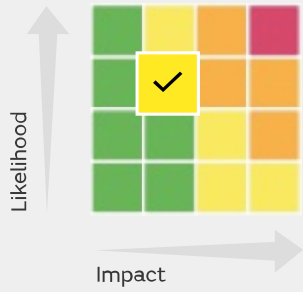
What to expect

- There is a good chance driving conditions will be affected by spray, standing water and/or hail, leading to longer journey times by car and bus
- Delays to train services are possible
- Some flooding of a few homes and businesses is possible, potentially leading to some damage to buildings or structures
- Perhaps damage to a few buildings and structures from lightning strikes
- Some short term loss of power and other services is possible

Further details

Heavy showers and thunderstorms will continue to run across southeast England through the rest of this afternoon and evening, these most frequent over Sussex and Kent. In some places, downpours could produce 10-15 mm in less than an hour, while a few locations which see repeated heavy showers and thunderstorms, could see a further 30-50 mm during the remainder of Thursday.

Drier conditions are expected to gradually become established by around midnight, except in parts of coastal southeast Kent, where heavy showers may continue into the early hours of Friday.



✓ Medium likelihood of low impacts
